Vif In statistics, the variance inflation factor (VIF) is the quotient of the variance in a model with multiple terms by the variance of a model with one term alone. It quantifies the severity of multicollinearity in an ordinary least squares regression analysis. Variance inflation factor - Wikipedia Variance inflation factor (VIF) is used to detect the severity of multicollinearity in the ordinary least square (OLS) regression analysis. Multicollinearity inflates the variance and type II error. It makes the coefficient of a variable consistent but unreliable. VIF measures the number of inflated variances caused by multicollinearity. Variance Inflation Factor (VIF) - Overview, Formula, Uses Viral infectivity factor, or Vif, is an accessory protein found in HIV and other lentiviruses. Its role is to disrupt the antiviral activity of the human enzyme APOBEC (specifically APOBEC3G, "A3G" in short) by targeting it for ubiquitination and cellular degradation. APOBEC is a cytidine deaminase enzyme that mutates viral nucleic acids. Viral infectivity factor - Wikipedia The variance inflation factor (VIF) quantifies the extent of correlation between one predictor and the other predictors in a model. It is used for diagnosing collinearity/multicollinearity. Higher values signify that it is difficult to impossible to assess accurately the contribution of predictors to a model. How the VIF is computed What are Variance Inflation Factors (VIFs)? | Displayr.com Variance inflation factor (VIF) is a measure of the amount of multicollinearity in a set of multiple regression variables. Mathematically, the VIF for a regression model variable is equal to

The Free Dictionary The most common way to detect multicollinearity is by using the variance inflation factor (VIF), which measures the correlation and strength of correlation between the predictor variables in a regression model. The value for VIF starts at 1 and has no upper limit. A general rule of thumb for interpreting VIFs is as follows: How to Calculate Variance Inflation Factor (VIF) in R ... VIF score of an independent variable represents how well the variable is explained by other independent variables. R^2 value is determined to find out how well an independent variable is described by the other independent variables. A high value of R^2 means that the variable is highly correlated with the other variables. Taking the square root of the VIF tells you how much larger the standard error of the estimated coefficient is respect to the case when that predictor is independent of the other predictors.
